The 24th Vietnam International Plastics & Rubber Industry Exhibition

Industry Overview

Vietnam's plastics and rubber industries have been experiencing rapid growth, positioning the country as one of Southeast Asia's most promising manufacturing and export hubs. In 2024, the plastics market reached nearly 11 million tons and continues to expand at an annual growth rate of around 8%, driven by strong demand in food and consumer packaging, construction, automotive components, and electronics. In rubber industry, Vietnam is the world's third-largest producer of natural rubber, with a market value of USD 500 million in 2024 and steady growth ahead, supplying tires and industrial products worldwide.

Export & Investment Advantages

As an export-oriented economy, Vietnam's plastics and rubber products are shipped to major markets such as the United States, Japan, the European Union, and China. With the implementation of the EU–Vietnam Free Trade Agreement (EVFTA) and CPTPP, Vietnamese products enjoy tariff advantages that significantly boost competitiveness. Combined with a young workforce, competitive labor costs, and well-developed industrial parks, Vietnam has become a top destination for foreign investment.

Industry Trends

Amid global sustainability efforts, the Vietnamese government is actively promoting the Extended Producer Responsibility (EPR) scheme, pushing companies to increase recycling and circular economy practices. This shift opens significant opportunities for eco-friendly materials, green packaging, and recycling technologies. At the same time, tightening global natural rubber supply further strengthens Vietnam's strategic importance in the market.

Why Exhibit in Vietnam?

Growing Demand for Plastics & Rubber

In 2020, the production of plastic products will reach 12.5 million tons and export turnover will be USD4.3 billion, followed by a growth rate of 15% each year later. In addition, the packaging segment has remained the highest proportion in Vietnam's plastic industry by reaching over 30 percent recent years. The construction and technical segment will also grow positively with the industry development plan to 2020.

Local Plastics Industry Rising

Vietnam's plastics industry has around 2,000 businesses, and 83% are located in the Ho Chi Minh City. Its plastics products having a great competitive edge for packaging, household products, and construction and engineering plastics. These plastics products have gradually reached the point to where it can control the market of several countries.

High Value FDI Attractor

In the 1st quarter of 2019, Vietnam has received around $16.74 billion in FDI. Foreign investors are investing in 19 different sectors of Vietnam economy. To enter this high value market, the 19th Vietnam International Plastics & Rubber Industry Exhibition is your finest choice.

Substantial opportunities toward EU market

Vietnamese Government and the Ministry of Industry attach great importance to the plastics industry by establishing 5-year development plan to stimulate growth in the production of high-tech plastic parts and developing the recycling industry.
